

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to methods of processing microelectronic device substrates, including methods of removing microscratches from such substrates, the methods involving smoothing or polishing the substrate surface in the presence of water, without 5 the application of abrasive particles, and optionally without the use of chemical agents, as well as products prepared from the methods.

8532

10